

Our dispatches this evening are chiefly occupied by an account of the recent movements of the Army under General Grant. That division of our forces under General Meade, as well as that under General Butler made a demonstration in force, but without any very great practical results, so far as we can see, except to get possession of a few miles of territory, and to capture about as many prisoners as our forces lost. General Grant was on the ground in person, directing the various movements. The rebels have entrenched themselves with an industry which indicates that they appreciate the vigilance and sleepless energy of the foe that lies encamped within sight of their city.

General Sheridan is reported to be again ready for offensive or defensive operations, as opportunity may offer.

The trial of the New York copperheads for ballot-box stuffing, will attract attention if not indignation. It is a practical application of their theory of a free election.

Maryland has been declared a free State, which will send a thrill of joy to the heart of every lover of human liberty throughout the world.

Another Glean or Sunshine.—After several days of weather gloomy enough to give the blues to any one who has not perpetual sunshine gilding his temperament, we have had another glimpse of blue sky and a sunbeam or two.

The results of Sheridan's late triumph give in figures a more perfect realization of the completeness than rhetorical descriptions could do. From 3,500 to 4,000 prisoners; 61 cannon, including the 20 captured from us in the morning, and 12,000 small arms have been taken. The rebels have fled beyond Harrisonburg, and are reported by the deserters who come into our lines to be in a very demoralized condition. The rebel papers, while attempting to gloss over certain ugly points of the defeat, admit that Early's rout was disastrous in the extreme. No movements of importance have taken place in the Valley for the last few days, but General Sheridan is getting ready for a vigorous resumption of active operation.

George Francis Train, who did the country some good service by his speeches in London, during the early months of the war, but afterward slid into the Democratic party, is on the right track again, and is dealing heavy blows on Copperheadism in Pennsylvania. His speech at Philadelphia on Saturday night, which we reproduce in another column, is one of his sharpest and most characteristic efforts. It is peculiarly interesting from the revelations which it makes of the wire-workings at the Chicago Convention.

The yellow fever is raging on the Southern coast. The death at Charleston recently averaged twenty a day, while at Newbern 119 persons are reported to have died in twenty-four hours. This is probably an exaggeration; still, the disease is unquestionably very fatal and prevalent there. The Union forces, who have been sent outside of the town, have suffered less than might be expected. At Wilmington N. C., the fever is likewise prevalent.

CALIFORNIA WENT UNION IN 1863 by a majority of 19,926. A letter from Senator Conness upon the prospect of his State, says: "I have no fears for the result of California. The value of peace and Union is too well known to the patriotic hearts of our people for them to flatter now. The people are too courageous to take a backward step. The name of California stands too high; she cannot afford to lower her crest, to let the ensign down."

It is amusing to hear the Democrats commending George B. McClellan as a statesman; a man who never held a civil office of so much importance as a selection of a town or a justice of the peace, and yet he is a candidate for Chief Magistrate, made so by a party which was unsparing in its abuse of Gen. Taylor, because he had no experience of matters in civil life!

The Richmond Whig of the 19th instant laughed at the superstition of the Yankees who expected some great event on that day because it was the 83d anniversary of the surrender of Cornwallis, and boasted that Richmond was still safe. A few hours later, when it learned of Early's defeat, it may have concluded that the "superstition" was not so ill-founded after all.

The Canadian papers, both those sympathizing with the South, and those opposed to secession, are united in denouncing the recent raid into Vermont as barbarous, and contrary to all the rules of civilized warfare. They see very plainly that it would be very unpleasant for Canada were the war to be carried to our Northern border.

Ten thousand of the French troops lately in Mexico, are on their way home. Fifty of their officers were at one hotel in New York, a day or two ago. A large number of Poles will, it is said, join Maximilian's army. He will need to replace his French troops by Poles or Germans, for the Mexicans are not a quiet people to rule over.

A western orator, in a recent political address, speaking of Mr. Lincoln's predecessor, said that "James Buchanan was the politician that brought this rebellion to a head."

What are the Prospects?

Horace Greeley, in the New York Tribune, says the State of New York is positively certain to give 30,000 and probably 60,000 majority for Lincoln. The rural districts are aroused; tremendous meetings are being held every day and night, and a full vote and sweeping victory is already assured. Advances from Pennsylvania are equally encouraging. The October majority of 15,000 will be increased to 40,000 in November. In Illinois the campaign is progressing finely, and a victory there is also certain. It is not necessary to say that Ohio and Indiana will be all right in November. Their status is fixed. The result in these States may be summed up thus:

New York.	Electoral Vote.	Union.	Majority.
Pennsylvania.	23	50,000	10,000
Illinois.	21	25,000	5,000
Ohio.	21	25,000	5,000
Indiana.	11	25,000	5,000
Total.	100	210,000	35,000

The number of electoral votes necessary to a choice is 116. The above States with Maine, would elect; but we shall of course, carry all the rest as certainly as we shall carry Ohio, except New Jersey, Kentucky and Missouri. These are doubtful.

"Vigor" and "Imbecility."

Speaking of the tactics of the Chicago convention, Mr. Geo. Sennot, an old Democrat, says in his Roxbury speech: "What splendid party-management this is, to be sure! First, at Chicago they place the party so that a Union victory in the field appears to be a Democratic loss! Then, they nominate a man, who, inside of the party rejects the platform, and outside of the party is overwhelmingly obliged to keep explaining why he failed."

And he continues in the following effective strain: "They are as blind to the situation of their country as they are to the position of their party. They tell us that the war is a failure, that it ought to stop now—and the whole does not die away before it is drowned in the shouts of victory round Atlanta! They say that our success is only a delusion, and that it will mislead us, as heretofore, into a useless waste of blood and of money. The reply to that rings from the guns in the Shenandoah! They say the cause of the 'failure' lies in the imbecility of the administration. It is vigor, I suppose, to shoot drafting officers—to hinder enlistments—to rob orphan asylums, and roast negroes in the streets of New York! It is vigor to keep twenty thousand troops from the front for a month, looking after Mr. Seymour's 'friends.' It is vigor to invite the British Ambassador to meddle in the internal affairs of this country. It is vigor to lay the plans of a great American convention before the agent of the London Times. It is vigor to run up the price of coal, of flour, and of meat, on mechanics and laborers, for the profit of a German Jew—and then to charge the rise to American contractors, so that Mr. Woodbury and Judge Abbot may be fooled into repeating Belmont's electioneering lie! These things are vigor! And it is imbecility to raise a million and a half of men, to expend two thousand millions of dollars, to blockade three thousand miles of coast in the face of hostile England, to force the British rebel pirates into lying in wait for merchants and robbing the schooner fishermen, to set free one million five hundred thousand slaves, and to release the rebellious States from fifteen to three and a half millions. It is the imbecility not only of the administration, but of Grant, of Sherman, Sheridan, and of Farragut! And I prefer it to the 'vigor' of Gov. Seymour, and even to the energy of Judge Abbott himself."

Geo. Francis Train, in his speech at Philadelphia, speaking of his labors at Chicago, contributed this bit to the secret political history of the country: "In the morning Pendleton told me that 'so help me God, I will do all I can to beat McClellan.' At 10 o'clock they offered him the Vice-Presidency, and he went over."

HENRY CLAY Dean of Iowa, who is going to vote for McClellan, in a speech made at Chicago, glorified the President as a "felon usurper, traitor and tyrant," an "incompetent and imbecile wretch," and the soldiers he denounced as the "slaves of the despot" and the "handiwork of the robber chief."

The Indiana Circuit Court at Evansville has just concluded the trial of a case of breach of promise, wherein Mrs. Ann Prewitt, of Louisville, was plaintiff, and Abel Sullivan, of Indiana, was defendant, and the said Abel was put under a contribution of $1,000 to the said Ann.

The Corps are bleeding G. H. McCormick, candidate for Congress in the Chicago District, most woefully. He has paid $10,000 for the National campaign, and $5,000 for putting through the election in Illinois. He is supposed to be the richest man in the west, and no doubt can stand it.

APPRENTICES are, hereafter, to be received in the navy. Boys between 14 and 18 are eligible, the consent of their parents having first been obtained, they are educated in nautical matters, and get from $8 to $10 a month.

TWO GENTLEMEN in Indiana have offered to give fifty thousand dollars each towards the establishment of a first-class Female College in the city of Lafayette, in that State, if one hundred thousand dollars more can be raised by the citizens.

A CHINAMAN has been accepted as a substitute for a drafted man in Portland, Me. When Whang-foo is on the enemy's track let everybody stand for under.

A PROMINENT citizen of Boston is about to open a house for incurable consumptives. This is the first institution of the kind opened in the world.

GARIKALDI continues in a very delicate state of health. He can only walk about with the assistance of crutches.

Correct your Poll Lists.

The Boards of Registry of the different

Wards of the city, will sit to-morrow and the day after, (Tuesday and Wednesday)

from eight o'clock in the morning until nine o'clock in the evening, for the purpose of correcting and completing the register of electors in each Ward.

The register before correction is a copy of the poll list of the last general election. The correction consists in adding the names of all unregistered voters and striking off the names of such persons as are not voters.

"No person can vote at the coming election whose name is not registered, unless he shall furnish his affidavit giving his reasons for not appearing before the board of registry, and also prove by oath of a householder, that he is an inhabitant of the Ward in which he offers his vote."

Let every voter make it his business to-morrow to see that his own name is properly registered, and that the registering of his ward is correct. By so doing much delay and annoyance at the polls on election day will be avoided.

C. G. WILLIAMS AT PORTAGE CITY.

—The last number of the Portage City Register gives a glowing account of the recent Union meeting held there, and speaks thus of the speech of Mr. Williams of this city:

"Alva Stewart, Esq., officiated as President, assisted by a number of Vice Presidents. Mr. Stewart opened the proceedings with a short but appropriate and interesting address, and then introduced C. G. Williams, Esq., of Jamesville, who reviewed the position of the present Democratic party, with ability and effect, which must have carried conviction to any doubting ones who heard him. Mr. Williams' speech was a capital one—systematic, logical, humorous when necessary, and at times eloquent—we have not heard its superior during the present campaign. His argument throughout was a masterly one, and his closing appeal was truly eloquent."

COOKING WITHOUT FIRE.

—Now that coal is so dear, we read with interest that M. Babinet, the distinguished scientific Frenchman, has succeeded in cooking without fire. He places his food in a black pot, covered with several panes of glass, and stands it in the sun. The water soon boils, and the food is said to be of a better flavor than that which is cooked in the ordinary way. But no sun, no dinner.

A Free Ballot.

Many unsophisticated persons were at a loss to know what was meant by the unanimous clamor of the delegates to the Chicago Convention for "a free election or a free fight." Out of the insurgent states the elections always have been free. Since the war broke out, the Republican Union party has universally been in favor of extending the right of a free ballot to those who had taken up arms in the nation's defense, and perilled their lives for our country's sake. In this they have been bitterly and persistently opposed by the party represented at Chicago. That party which has lately become a party of constitutional lawyers, opposed the laws allowing soldiers to vote because of their unconstitutionality in the first place, and the temptations to commit fraud which such laws and such opportunities provoked.

But their preaching does not correspond with their practice. The telegraph to-day brings us an inkling of manner in which they propose to use the free ballot. Some of Governor Seymour's "friends" have been doing a good thing for Seymour and McClellan by forging returns from the New York soldiers, and substituting democratic for union votes, of which our dispatches give some interesting details. The simple truth is the minds of this copperhead faction have become so debauched by being taught to scoff at the higher law and to disregard all moral obligation, that fraud and forgery have ceased to become crimes in their eyes. And no wonder when their religious faith rises no higher than the constitution, and their highest conceptions of manhood is to follow the dictum of a caucus held at a whiskey grocery.

The Savants to Mr. Lincoln.

On the 1st instant the following address, bearing the signatures of one hundred and sixty members of "The International Association for the Advancement of Social Science," lately in session at Amsterdam, was presented to the United States Consul at Amsterdam, for transmission to Mr. Lincoln:

"We have followed with profound interest, from its origin, the struggle between the energetic citizens of the North and the slaveholders of the South. While regretting the bloodshed and the evils resulting from war, we congratulate you upon the constant firmness with which you have defended the cause of justice and humanity. Convinced that the United States nation will issue from this trial stronger than ever, and with a future definitely separated from every servile institution, we await the speedy triumph of the holy cause of liberty. We are sure that the destinies of the great republic will never be compromised by you."

SYMPATHY FROM SWEDEN.—I cannot but believe, with you, that this war, is providential, and, after its worst is done, its woes are past, will serve as a baptism for a newer and higher life. A baptism of blood, it is true, and terrible it is; but the blood of God will turn the very wounds, to eyes that see His will, to fountains of sympathy and charity. God bless America! My heart is there now more than ever; and were I younger I would be there now and body, and mix among those who take care of the sick and wounded. But I am old, and shall hardly ever more cross the Atlantic except with my warm wishes.—Frederick Bremer.

"When the Administration puts its policy on paper, we must support it, whatever we think of it individually. When you hear a man finding too much fault with the Administration, you can rely on it that in secret he is opposed to the war."—George B. Smith in 1862.

"This Administration is dragging us down to ruin faster, inconceivably faster, than the Southern Confederacy could do, if they were left unobstructed to assail us."—George B. Smith, in 1861.

To whom it may concern.—For the last time, I hereby give notice that all notes and accounts due me must be paid at once. I have made this request several times before. From a good many I have not even received regrets. If any of my customers think that I have not waited long enough, I shall differ with them without making any words. A settlement I will have. The greenbacks or a judgment is the only way it can be settled.

A RACY STUMP SPEECH.

The Irrepressible George Francis Train Modestly and with much Diffidence and Hesitation Denies His Position.

(From the Philadelphia Press.)

George Francis Train delivered one of his characteristic political speeches in the hall of the Republican Inevitables on Saturday night. The hall was filled to overflowing, and the audience was evidently delighted with the oration. He was greeted throughout with great applause. He spoke as follows:

FELLOW CITIZENS: I will pass this cheer which you give me along the line where it belongs—to the credit of the Union and the country. [Applause.] When cannot afford to cheer an individual, when the life of the nation is at stake, I do not cheer a man, but I cheer a principle. I do not cheer a man, but I cheer a principle. When allusion was made to "strange bedfellows," etc., I am not a stranger to you. I am one of those who received here two years ago, in the Academy of Music; two years ago, after I had fought the battle of the Union and the country in England. [Cheers.] And, again, I am not in the habit, although I have been in a good many rat-holes all over the world, I have never been in the habit of getting in with strange bedfellows. [Laughter.] I therefore don't feel a stranger, or with strange bedfellows when I am before you. I believe in destiny. I believe in a star backed up by three P's—Patience, Perseverance and Pluck. [Cheers.] I believe in the motto, "Truth, Faith and Energy." I found in France that Liberty, Equality and Fraternity were the idea of the people, which in England were translated Steam, Gas and Electricity. In this country I find that under Grant, Sherman and Sheridan, [Cheers.] it is Infantry, Cavalry, and Artillery. [Cheers.] I believe in destiny, and it is singular, thing that I always bring up in Pennsylvania upon the eve of some great enterprise. In England I fought for the people, and have been carried from jail to jail, and it is only two years since I came out of the White Cross Chapel, where they at first wanted to put me in with the aristocrats. I declined, and went with the people, and preached a sermon to them on the downfall of England, and made more noise inside than I had made outside. [Laughter.] When the word came: "Let that man out—he is demoralizing the prisoners"—[laughter]—that may be the allusion of my friend to strange bedfellows—[laughter]—I liked the prison so well that I petitioned the Governor for permission to remain a week longer. [Laughter.]

GEORGE POSTPONES THE CHICAGO CONVENTION AND THE CHICAGO CONVENTION RETURNS THE COMPLIMENT.

Not being a politician, I care nothing about the charges of political parties. I went to Washington to get the Democratic Convention postponed. I found that the whole Convention was in the hands of two organizations, one the house of Rothschilds, and the other the Albany Regency. I was determined to have the Convention postponed, and to make Belmont back down. The time was fixed for the Convention to meet, on the 4th of July. I got forty-four prominent Democrats, nearly all the Democratic members of Congress, to sign a paper asking for the postponement of the Convention; Belmont refused to postpone. I then found Thomas B. Florence, the real Chairman of the Democratic Committee appointed at Charleston, and I succeeded in having the Convention postponed. You know as well as I that there were many Republicans anxious for a change; among them were Wade, Davis, Chase, Pomeroy, and others, who insisted upon only one term for the Presidency, and I wanted a man nominated at Chicago that these Republicans could endorse. I saw George Sanders, Clay, and other Southern men in Canada, having gone by land, and how we would stay the war honorably to last parties. I went to the Chicago Convention. They knew I wasn't for McClellan, because I didn't see much difference between Lincoln and McClellan on the war question. I asked the Democrats, "What is your issue before the country? What is the issue?" I took the stump and made speeches to the Democrats at Chicago against Lincoln, and I applied every charge against Lincoln to McClellan. I said Lincoln was charged with making illegal arrests, and I pointed them to McClellan's illegal arrests. I showed them that Lincoln was only following the example set him by Gen. B. McClellan. [Applause.] I talked about State's rights. Why who wiped out State's rights at onesweep? George B. McClellan. He wrote to General Banks that he "should not let one of them escape," meaning the Maryland Legislature, whom he sent to jail. You charge Lincoln with suspending the habeas corpus. Was not the arrest of the Maryland Legislature made in defiance of habeas corpus? I heard the Democrats talking to the people about the draft? It was George B. McClellan. Where are your issues then, O Democrats? You complain about the proclamation of George B. McClellan's order of July 7th only anticipated that, because he wanted the manumission of slaves as a military necessity. [Applause.] I found, then, that there was no issue before the country, and that being chargeable with all the crimes they charge on the Republicans, their sole motive of action was simply the public plunder. [Applause.] I saw the cohesive power of public plunder, and I broke the bars of public virtue, so far as they were concerned. I said if the republicans, with such little experience, have managed to steal so much, in God's name don't let the Democrats get at the plunder, for they spent a life-time at it! [Laughter and applause.]

My candidates at the Chicago Convention were the army and navy. [Applause.] My platform was simply, "Drive France out of Mexico, whip England on the sea." [Applause.] My candidates were men distinguished for the eminent stand they have taken against the rebellion. One was a member of a Democratic Cabinet, and wrote to New Orleans the words of my political platform: "I will not hand out the American flag, and I will not spot." [Applause.] My Vice President is in the Navy, and I wanted no better man than the gallant old hero who tied himself to the mizzenmast as he went into Mobile. [Applause.] Then these Democrats said, "That won't do." It was then I saw the treason of the Chicago Convention. George B. McClellan was the shadow of Sam Barlow and A. Belmont, who is the agent of the English Rothschilds and Jeff Davis's Confederacy. [Applause.] When I saw this I thought it was time for me to go to work; and you know if there is anything big going on anywhere round the world I am generally there. [Laughter.] When they found I was not for McClellan, they said I should not go into the Convention. I was only permitted to revivify a distance the rotten cheese and the political maggots all around it. [Laughter.] They shut me out of the Convention. But I had a triumph. I was the man that had the Convention postponed. There was no free speech in the Convention. It was a mere question with the New York rowdies whether they would allow any body to say a word. I told them it was time to think about the state of the country, but they would not do it. The Rothschilds and the Albany Regency held the day, and it was a most pitiful sight to see the Pennsylvania delegation crouching at the feet of the New Yorkers. When New York took a pinch of snuff, Pennsylvania sneezed. [Laughter and applause.] I did my best with your delegates to get them to vote for Dix. I succeeded with some Connecticut delegates, and finally got one hundred names.

PRIVATE OPINIONS PUBLICLY EXPRESSED.

I paid a visit to George H. Pendleton before the nominations were made. I asked him if he intended to vote for McClellan. "No, Mr. Train; so help me God, I will do all I can to defeat McClellan," and I think he has. When I found that the Convention was about being sold out to McClellan, I warned Vallandigham one day at dinner, and said I, "Vallandigham, if they intend to do that sort of thing I will burst the whole concern." "Don't talk so loud," said Vallandigham, "there are some McClellan men over there, Mr. Train." [Laughter.] The result of the Convention's deliberations is neither fish, flesh, fowl, nor mince meat. In order to please a trimmer President, they had war; in order to please a trimmer candidate for the Vice Presidency, they had peace; and in order to please all the great and little trimmers, they resolved to let the war go on until the trimmer peace is decided. Under the idea of "pap" they supposed there was nothing but what they could carry. I saw their platform. It was the most singular amalgamation of men and things I ever saw. Soon after, I wrote my opinion of it. It was:

Resolved, in order to please the trimmer war candidate, we have peace.

Resolved, in order to please all, that the war goes on until we get in. [Laughter.] At the same time it reminded me of a little story, wherein it is related that it was:

Resolved, That we have a new jail.

Resolved, That the new jail stand where the old jail stood.

Resolved, That the old jail be not removed until the new jail be built. [Laughter.]

When they gave cheers for McClellan, it reminded me of whistling at a funeral. When Mr. Hall, the Chairman of the Philadelphia Committee to write to Mr. Train to stump the State, wrote me, I replied:

Chicago Nomination—Positive, Bail.
October Elections—Comparative, Boiler.
November Elections—Superlative, Burst.

They asked me if I would join in helping along McClellan's election. "Not much," said I, "just count me out." I left Chicago with the New York Democrats, and the wheels of the cars that whirled us along seemed to say, in their belief, "McClellan," "McClellan," and they actually manifested that into enthusiasm for their candidate.

"Not a drop of blood, not a funeral note, not a hiccup from Chicago was heard." Not a soldier discharged his firearm shot. Over the cars where McClellan was hoisted. [Laughter.]

When I got to New York the Albany Regency offered me a seat in the Cabinet if I would give my influence to McClellan. Said I, "Gentlemen, no; I don't want a Cabinet appointment. I know of forty appointments already." [Laughter.] I reminded them of a celebrated reformer who, being taken up to a high mountain, was offered the whole world, but the fact was the poor devil didn't own a cabbage garden. [Reverend laughter.] McClellan may have his New Jersey cabbage garden, but I doubt whether he will get a single electoral vote. [Applause.] They are trying to make McClellan out a War Democrat, but he has proved himself nothing more nor less in his letter of acceptance than a political trickster. [Applause.] It isn't their fish nor fowl, black nor white, neither male nor female. I believe Lincoln himself would have gone for a loyal man nominated at Chicago. [Applause.] I told the Democrats very plainly that I would stamp the Union against them, if they did not nominate the right kind of a man. [Applause.] I don't want to belong to a party that don't cheer when Sheridan gets a victory.

ONLY TWO PARTIES IN THE COUNTRY AND GEORGE HAS THE SENSE TO SELECT THE RIGHT ONE.

There are only two parties in the country now—the one cheers when Sheridan captures forty-three pieces of artillery, and the other don't cheer at all except when Sheridan loses forty-three pieces of artillery. [Applause.] The one party puts up gold, and the other pulls it down. I don't say that the Democratic party are traitors, but I do say that they would sell the whole people if they could only get into office. [Applause.] The Constitution don't say "we, the politicians," but "we, the people." Now, I say down with the politicians, and up with the people, and until we get that accomplished we will never settle this fight. The people are generally right, except in New York. In the time of the New York riots the voice of the people was the voice of the devil, and not according to the old Latin phrase. This world is composed of two classes of men—the positive and the negative. The positive man goes down the stream, and nobody takes any notice of him. The positive man goes up stream, and everybody is looking at him; and I believe that when a civil revolution comes in the North, the Democratic party will find that absence of body is better than presence of mind. [Laughter.] They had better get their brainspells behind, for they will be up to be wounded, as their backs will be turned to the foe. [Great laughter.] I told General Van the Chairman of the Democratic Committee for Pennsylvania, that if he didn't withdraw McClellan, I would stump the State for Lincoln, and I would defeat this gunboat General by 50,000. [Applause.]

Barlow said to me in New York, the other day, that I went for the Republicans because they paid me for it. "Well, suppose they do," said I; "I happen to be a gentleman of fortune, and could buy your whole concern out." [Laughter.] "The only expense I ever put the United States Government to was a private escort from St. Louis into Illinois." [Laughter.] "The Democratic machine is run by England. The Irish and the Fenian Brotherhood have been sold out by the house of Rothschild in England. Every paper in England, except the Star and Daily News, is for McClellan. Can't these Irishmen see how they are being led to the slaughter? St. Paul said, 'The Jew first, then the Gentile.' [Laughter.] Now it is Belmont, the Jew, first, and the Christians afterwards. Protestant England once united with Catholic France to help Mohammedan Turkey to squelch out Greek Russia. I thought that was a singular copartnership, but the most singular of all is this sight we see now of four millions of Catholics led up to the slaughter by their old friends the Jews. [Applause.] This war was brought on by England. She sent her emissaries here, not out of any love for the negro, but to stir up a bonfire of contention. [Laughter.] "It's not so," it was replied. "It is, it is," said I. "It was opinion in the religion," in Ireland, and it was the same question in America. [A voice, "It is false," and cries of "Put him out."] Now, gentlemen, keep cool; I want nobody to

DIARRHOEA AND DYSENTERY.
We have registered a great number of letters from some of the most prominent citizens of Cincinnati and Covington, etc., speaking in the highest terms of Dr. Strickland's Anti-Cholera Mixture for the cure of diarrhoea and dysentery. The letters are too long to publish. Mr. Woods, of Covington, says he was troubled for several months by the best doctors in Cincinnati, and one bottle of Dr. Strickland's Anti-Cholera Mixture effected a permanent cure after suffering for months with the most form of diarrhoea and dysentery.

Another says he was discharged from the United States service after suffering in the hospital for eight months as incurable, and as a last resource tried Strickland's Anti-Cholera Mixture. He got well at once, and has now entered the army again in good health. One man writes he has cured seven or eight very bad cases of diarrhoea and dysentery in the barracks he was in with one bottle of this valuable medicine. In fact we could fill half a dozen papers with similar letters from these letters. Why does not our government secure this valuable preparation? Our army ought to be supplied with it. It is not a cheap thing since one of our men lay in a very low condition at one of our Cincinnati Hospitals, his wife was sent for. The doctors considered his case an hopeless one. She, however, gave him Strickland's Anti-Cholera Mixture, and in three weeks he was able to return home with his wife to New Richmond, O. All these cases ought at home speak for themselves. We hope all the soldiers will put a bottle of it in their knapsacks. It may save them or some of their comrades. It is for sale by Dr. J. SKILLIN HOWARD, general agent for Wisconsin.

LYON'S KATHAIRON.
Kathairon is from the Greek word "Kathio," or "Kathion," signifying to cleanse, rejuvenate and restore. This article is what its name signifies. For preserving, restoring and beautifying the human hair it is the most remarkable preparation in the world. It is again owned and put up by the original proprietor, and is now made with the same care, skill and attention which gave it a sale of over one million bottles per annum.

It is a most delightful Hair Dressing. It eradicates scalp dandruff. It keeps the head cool and clean. It makes the hair rich, soft and glossy. It prevents the hair from falling out and turning gray. It restores hair upon bald heads. Any lady or gentleman who values a beautiful head of hair should use Lyon's Kathairon. It is known and used throughout the civilized world. Sold by all respectable dealers.

MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.
The parties in St. Louis and Cincinnati, who have been contracting the Mustang Liniment under pretense of proprietorship, have been thoroughly exposed by the Courts. To guard against further imposition, I have procured from the United States Treasury, a private plate revenue stamp, which is placed over the top of each bottle. Each stamp bears the facsimile of my Signature, and without which the article is a counterfeit, dangerous and worthless imitation. Examine every bottle. This Liniment has been in use and growing in favor for many years. There hardly exists a house on the ballfield globe that does not contain evidence of its wonderful effects. It is the best emollient in the world. With its present improved ingredients, its effects upon man and beast are perfectly remarkable. Sores are healed, pains relieved, lacerations, valuable animals made useful, and untold ills alleviated. For cuts, bruises, sprains, rheumatism, swellings, bites, snake, cobra, treated horses, etc., it is a sovereign remedy that should never be dispensed with. It should be in every family. Sold by all Druggists.

A Free Ballot.
Many unsophisticated persons were at a loss to know what was meant by the unanimous clamor of the delegates to the Chicago Convention for "a free election or a free fight." Out of the insurgent states the elections always have been free. Since the war broke out, the Republican Union party has universally been in favor of extending the right of a free ballot to those who had taken up arms in the nation's defense, and perilled their lives for our country's sake. In this they have been bitterly and persistently opposed by the party represented at Chicago. That party which has lately become a party of constitutional lawyers, opposed the laws allowing soldiers to vote because of their unconstitutionality in the first place, and the temptations to commit fraud which such laws and such opportunities provoked.

But their preaching does not correspond with their practice. The telegraph to-day brings us an inkling of manner in which they propose to use the free ballot. Some of Governor Seymour's "friends" have been doing a good thing for Seymour and McClellan by forging returns from the New York soldiers, and substituting democratic for union votes, of which our dispatches give some interesting details. The simple truth is the minds of this copperhead faction has become so debauched by being taught to scoff at the higher law and to disregard all moral obligation, that fraud and forgery have ceased to become crimes in their eyes. And no wonder when their religious faith rises no higher than the constitution, and their highest conceptions of manhood is to follow the dictum of a caucus held at a whiskey grocery.

The Satants to Mr. Lincoln.
On the 1st instant the following address, bearing the signatures of one hundred and sixty members of "The International Association for the Advancement of Social Science," lately in session at Amsterdam, was presented to the United States Consul at Amsterdam, for transmission to Mr. Lincoln:

"To Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States:
"We have followed with profound interest, from its origin, the struggle between the energetic citizens of the North and the slaveholders of the South. While regretting the bloodshed and the evils resulting from war, we congratulate you upon the constant firmness with which you have defended justice and humanity. Convinced that this trial stronger than ever, and with a future definitely separated from every servile institution, we await the speedy triumph of the holy cause of liberty. We are sure that the destinies of the great republic will never be compromised by you."

Sympathy from Sweden.—I cannot but believe, with you, that this war is providential, and, after its worst is done, its woes are past, will serve as a baptism for a newer and higher life. A baptism of blood, it is true, and terrible it is; but the grapes of God will be the fountains of sympathy and charity. God bless America! My heart is there now more than ever; and my younger I would be there soul and body, and mix among those who take care of the sick and wounded. But I am old, and shall hardly ever more cross the Atlantic except with my warm wishes.—Frederick Bremer.

"When the Administration puts its policy on paper, we must support it, whatever it may be individually. When you hear a man finding too much fault with the Administration, you can rely on it that he is in the opposition to the war."—George B. Smith in 1862.

"This Administration is dragging us down to ruin faster, inconceivably faster, than the Southern Confederacy could do if they were left unobstructed to assault us."—George B. Smith, in 1864.

To Whom It May Concern.—For the last time, I hereby give notice that all notes and accounts due me must be paid at once. I have made this request several times before. From a good many I have not even received regrets. If any of my customers think that I have not waited long enough, I shall differ with them without making any words. A settlement I will have. The greenbacks or a judgment is the only way in which I can be satisfied.

A RACY STUMP SPEECH.

The Irrepressible George Francis Train Modestly and with much Diffidence and Hesitation Defends His Position.

(From the Philadelphia Press.)

George Francis Train delivered one of his characteristic political speeches in the hall of the Republican Invincibles on Saturday night. The hall was filled to overflowing, and the audience, were evidently delighted with the oration. He was greeted throughout with great applause. He spoke as follows:

FELLOW CITIZENS: I will pass this cheer which you give me along the line where it belongs—to the credit of the Union and the country. [Applause.] You cannot afford to cheer an individual when the life of the nation is at stake. I do not plead guilty to two charges of the gentleman, (referring to his introduction, when allusion was made to "strange bedfellows," etc.) I am not a stranger to you. I am one that you received here two years ago, after had thought the battle of the Union and the country of England. [Cheers.] And, again, I am not in the habit, although I have been in a good many rat-holes all over the world, I have never been in the habit of getting in with strange bedfellows. [Laughter.] I therefore do not feel a stranger; or with strange bedfellows when I am before you. I believe in destiny. I believe in a star backed up by three P's—Patience, Perseverance and Pluck. [Cheers.] I believe in the motto, "Truth, Faith and Energy." I found in France that Liberty, Equality and Fraternity were the idea of the people, which in England were translated Steam, Gas and Electricity. In this country I find that under Grant, Sherman and Sheridan, [cheers.] it is Infantry, Cavalry, and Artillery. [Cheers.] I believe in destiny, and it is a singular thing that I always bring up in Pennsylvania upon the eye of some great outburst. In England I fought for the people, and have been carried from jail to jail, and it is only two years since I came out of the White Rose Chapel, where they at first wanted to put me in with the aristocrats. I declined, and went with the people, and preached a sermon to them on the downfall of England, and made more noise inside than I had made outside. [Laughter.] When the war came: "Let that man out—he is demoralizing the prisoners!" [laughter]—that may be the allusion of my friend to strange bedfellows. [laughter]—I liked the prison so well that I petitioned the Governor for permission to remain a week longer. [Laughter.]

GEORGE POSTONES THE CHICAGO CONVENTION AND THE CHICAGO CONVENTION HELD THE COMPLIMENT.

Not being a politician, I care nothing about the charges of political parties. I went to Washington to get the Democratic Convention postponed. I found that the whole Convention was in the hands of two organizations, one the house of Rothschilds, and the other the Albany Regency. I was determined to have the Convention postponed, and to make Belmont back down. The time was fixed for the Convention to meet, on the 4th of July. I got forty-four prominent Democrats, nearly all the Democratic members of Congress, to sign a paper asking for the postponement of the Convention. Belmont refused to postpone. Then found Thomas B. Florence, the real Chairman of the Democratic Committee appointed at Charleston, and I succeeded in having the Convention postponed. You know as well as I that there were many Republicans anxious for a change; among them were Wade, Davis, Chase, Pomeroy, and others who insisted upon only one term for the Presidency, and I wanted a man nominated at Chicago that these Republicans could endorse. I saw George Sanders, Clay, and other Southern men in Canada, having gone to find out how we could stop the war honorably to both parties. I went to the Chicago Convention. They knew I wasn't for McClellan, because I didn't see much difference between Lincoln and McClellan on the war question. I asked the Democrats, "What is your issue?" I took the stump, and made speeches to the Democrats at Chicago against Lincoln, and I applied every charge against Lincoln to McClellan. I said Lincoln was charged with making illegal arrests, and I pointed them to McClellan's illegal arrests. I showed them that Lincoln was only following the example set him by Geo. B. McClellan. [Applause.] I talked about State's rights. Why who wiped out State's rights at once sweep? George B. McClellan. He wrote to General Banks that he "should not let one of them escape," meaning the Maryland Legislature, whom he sent to jail. You charge Lincoln with suspending the habeas corpus. Was not the arrest of the Maryland Legislature made in defiance of the habeas corpus? I heard the Democrats talking to the people about the issue? It was George B. McClellan. Where are your issues, then, O Democrats? You complain about the proclamation. George B. McClellan's order of July 7th only anticipated that, because he wanted the unmanumission of slaves as a military necessity. [Applause.] I found, then, that there was no issue before the country, and that being chargeable with all the crimes they charge on the Republicans, their sole motive of action was simply the public plunder. [Applause.] I saw the cohesive power of public plunder, and I broke the bars of public virtue, so far as they were concerned. I said if the Republicans, with such little experience, have managed to steal so much, in God's name don't let the Democrats get at the plunder, for they spent a life-time at it! [Laughter and applause.]

My candidates at the Chicago Convention were the army and navy. [Applause.] My platform was, "I will take out of Mexico, whip England and the Confederacy." [Applause.] My candidates were men distinguished for the eminent stand they have taken against the rebellion. One was a member of a Democratic cabinet, and wrote to New Orleans the words of my political platform: "If any man hauls down the American flag, shoot him on the spot." [Applause.] My Vice President is in the Navy, and I wanted no better man than the gallant old war who tied himself to the masthead as he went into Mobile. [Applause.] Then these Democrats said, "That won't do." It was then I saw the brood of the Chicago Convention, (George B. McClellan is just the shadow of Sam Bowler and A. Belmont, who is the agent of the English Rothschilds and Jeff Davis.) [Applause.] [Applause.] When I saw this I thought it was time for me to go to work; and you know if there is anything big going on anywhere round the world I am generally there. [Laughter.] When they found I was not for McClellan, they said I should not go into the Convention. I was only permitted to review at a distance the rotten cheese and the political maggots all around it. [Laughter.] They shut me out of the Convention. But I had a triumph. I was the man that had the Convention postponed. There was no free speech in the Convention. It was a mere question with the New York rowdies whether they would allow any body to say a word. I told them it was time to think about the state of the country, but they would not do it. The Rothschilds and the Albany Regency held the day, and it was a most pitiful sight to see the Pennsylvania delegation crouching at the feet of the New Yorkers. When New York took a pinch of snuff, Pennsylvania sneezed. [Laughter and applause.] I did my best with your delegates to get them to vote for Dix. I succeeded with some Connecticut delegates, and finally got one hundred names.

PRIVATE OPINIONS PUBLICLY EXPRESSED.
I paid a visit to George H. Pendleton before the nominations were made. I asked him if he intended to vote for McClellan. "No, Mr. Train; I help me God, I will do all I can to defeat McClellan," and I think he has. When I found that the Convention was about being sold out to McClellan, I warned Vallandigham one day at dinner, and said, "Vallandigham, if they intend to do that sort of thing I will bust the whole convention." "Don't talk so loud," said Vallandigham, "there are some McClellan men over there, Mr. Train." [Laughter.] The result of the Convention's deliberations is neither fish, fowl, nor mince meat. In order to save a trimmer President, they had war; in order to please a trimmer candidate for the Vice Presidency, they had peace; and in order to please all, the great and little trimmers, they resolved to let the war go on until the trimmer peace is decided. Under the idea of "pax" they supposed there was nothing but what they could carry. I saw their platform. It was the most singular amalgamation of men and things I ever saw. Soon after, I wrote my opinion of it. It was:

Resolved, In order to please the trimmer peace candidate, we have peace.

Resolved, In order to please all, that the war goes on until we get in. [Laughter.] At the same time it reminded me of a little story, wherein it is related that it was:

Resolved, That we have a new jail.

Resolved, That the new jail stand where the old jail stood.

Resolved, That the old jail be not removed until the new jail be built. [Laughter.]

When they gave cheers for McClellan, it reminded me of whistling at a funeral. When Mr. Hall, the Chairman of the Philadelphia Committee to write to Mr. Train to stump the State, wrote me, I replied:

Chicago Nomination—Positive, Boil.

October Elections—Comparative, Boil.

November Elections—Superlative, Burst.

I also said:

DEER, November, 1864.

The Democratic Party, Disease—Fury on the Brain.

They asked me if I would join in helping along McClellan's election. "Not much," said I. "Just count me out." I left Chicago with the New York Democrats, and the schools of the city that I carried along seemed to say, in my belief, "McClellan," "McClellan," and they actually manufactured that into enthusiasm for their candidate.

"Not a word was heard, not a finger stirred," as the crowd from Chicago, we hurried. Not a soldier discharged his revolver shot. Over the grave where McClellan we buried."

[Laughter.]

IS OFFERED A SEAT IN AN AIR CASTLE CARNEY.

When I got to New York the Albany Regency offered me a seat in the Cabinet if I would give my influence to McClellan. Said I, "Gentlemen, no; I don't want a Cabinet appointment. I know of forty appointments already." [Laughter.] I reminded them of a celebrated reformer who, being taken up to high mountain, was offered the whole world, but the fact was the poor devil didn't own a cabbage garden. [Renewed laughter.] McClellan has been a New Jersey cabbage garden, but I don't believe he will get a single electoral vote. [Applause.] They are trying to make McClellan out a War Democrat, but he has proved himself nothing more nor less in his letter of acceptance than a political trickster. [Applause.] It isn't fish nor fowl, black nor white, neither male nor female. I believe Lincoln himself would have gone for a loyal man nominated at Chicago. [Applause.] I told the Democrats very plainly that I would stump the Union against them, if they did not nominate the right kind of a man. [Applause.] I don't want to belong to a party that don't cheer when Sheridan gets a victory.

ONLY TWO PARTIES IN THE COUNTRY AND GEORGE HAS THE SENSE TO SELECT THE RIGHT ONE.

There are only two parties in the country now—the one cheers when Sheridan captures forty-three pieces of artillery, and the other don't cheer at all except when Sheridan loses forty-three pieces of artillery. [Applause.] The one party puts up gold, and the other pulls it down. I don't say that the Democratic party are traitors, but I do say their leaders would sell the whole people if they could only get into office. [Applause.] "The Constitution don't say 'we, the politicians,' but 'we, the people.'" Now, I say down with the politicians, and up with the people, and until we get that accomplished we will never settle this fight. The people are generally right, except in New York. In the time of the New York riots the voice of the people was the voice of the devil, and not according to the old Latin phrase. This world is composed of two classes of men—the positive and the negative. The negative man goes down the stream, and nobody takes any notice of him. The positive man goes up stream, and everybody is looking at him; and I believe that when a civil revolution comes in the North, the democratic party will find that absence of body is better than presence of mind. [Laughter.] They had better get their brains behind them, for they will be up to the neck in the back of the head to the foe. [Great laughter.] I told General Ward the Chairman of the Democratic Committee for Pennsylvania, that if he didn't withdraw McClellan I would stump the State for Lincoln, and I would defeat this gambler General by 50,000. [Applause.]

Barlow said to me in New York, the other day, that I went for the Republicans because they paid me for it. "Well, suppose they do," said I; "I happen to be a gentleman of fortune, and could buy your whole concern out." [Laughter.] The only expense I ever put the United States Government to was a private escort from St. Louis into Illinois. [Laughter.] The Democratic machine is run by England, the Irish and the Fenian Brotherhood have been said out by the house of Rothschild to England. Every paper in England, except the Star and Daily News, is for McClellan. Can't these Irishmen see how they are being led to the slaughter? St. Paul said, "The Jew first, then the Gentile." [Laughter.] Now it is Belmont, the Jew, first, and the Christians afterwards. Protestant England unite with Catholic France to help Mohammedan Turkey to smother out Grecian Russia. I thought that was a singular partnership, but the most singular of all is this sight we see now of four millions of Catholics led up to the slaughter by their old friends the Jews. [Applause.] This war was brought on by England. She sent her emissaries here, not out of any love for the negro, but to stir up a bone of contention. A voice, "It's not us," it was in Spain in India, religion in Ireland, and it was the slave question in America. A voice, "It is false," and cries of "Put him out." Now, gentlemen, keep cool; I want nobody to help me in keeping quiet; I don't manage my own audience, as at a dinner. [Laughter.] They used to say to me in England, "Why don't you put down the rebellion before you threaten England?" and I told them it was because we were fighting Americans, and if we were fighting Englishmen, we would have whipped them long since. [Applause.] In case Ireland rises up against England, again, we intend to be strictly neutral. We will acknowledge Ireland a belligerent, but we will remain neutral. [Laughter.] We will land three hundred thousand Irishmen from our ships at Cork and Belfast, and send with them munitions of war, but we will remain neutral. We have got a debt to pay England for whipping our commerce from the sea. Let us defeat McClellan and the English party at home first, and then we can go abroad.

The speaker now alluded to the firm and decided stand that Major General Dix had taken in regard to the freebooters who came from Canada to St. Albans Vt. Following them, said he, into Canada, or wherever they go, and shoot them down. [Great cheering for General Dix.] Our men did not shoot them. This, when told to Lord Lyons, made him see the handwriting on the wall. [Applause.] We have these on the lakes, and at Halifax, where blockade runners are now ready to go on their way. I might as well make up my mind once as becoming great Americans, to arise and say, this has gone far enough, the nefarious work must be stopped; let us arise, and it needs be, march into Canada, and make a clean job of the work of stopping this damnable piracy and filibustering. [Deafening applause.] What we do we must do to the end. He charged England with making this war, with nominating McClellan, and that Belmont, the agent of Rothschild, is now sending money into Pennsylvania in order that England by force of circumstances may escape paying one hundred millions of dollars to America. The speaker, in taking a comprehensive view, referred to the point that it is not at all unlikely that England and France will, through Maximilian, acknowledge the Southern Confederacy. But perhaps all this will be defeated by the loyal people. Already a great party is about to be formed in New York that is bound to relieve the Democratic party from its present depressing embarrassments, by taking it from the power of its English-Jewish leaders. The Democratic party must be taken from the hands of Belmont and the Rothschilds. General Dix will speak; he is in favor of the movement; he will place the party on its proper base. We must be in earnest in this work. We want all good men to join in one common brotherhood in the North. We must remember that Mr. Lincoln cannot save the country unless he receives the support of us all. We must drop all party issues. In the name of our country let us all rejoice in all the efforts made to keep our Union together. Let us give three cheers for the Union, the Constitution and the laws. Three cheers were given by the immense mass of people present. Great cheering was now given for Mr. Train, General Dix, and other patriots, during which the speaker retired.
